Two country schoolmasters were discussing their respective schools. The first said: "One-sixth of my pupils are away ill, eleven are plowing, seven are gone to the fair, and I have thirty-seven here at work." What was the difference in their numbers?

Qualifying for Contest

Five puzzles each Sunday for five Sundays are being printed in The Sunday Times. Today has the second installment.

Competitors must send correct solutions of 14 of these 25 in order to qualify for the contest.

Answers must reach the Puzzle Editor, Washington Sunday Times, on or before Wednesday following the Sunday on which the puzzles are printed.

The correct answers to the puzzles will be printed on the Sunday following, so that competitors can tell their standing.

After the preliminary (or qualifying) test is over one puzzle will be printed each Sunday, and the series will be continued until all the competitors except one have failed to send in correct answers.

That one will win the chief prize of $250.

Those who stay next longest in the competition will win the other prizes in their order.

A card catalogue of contestants who have qualified will be kept.

When a contestant sends in an incorrect answer to a puzzle or fails to send in any answer her name will be dropped from the list.

Should competitors be tied for any places the amount of the highest prize involved will be paid to each.

Puzzlers Encouraged

Have you entered the puzzle contest?

There is as much genuine, widespread interest in this contest as even the Puzzle Editor expected among the brainy women of Washington. Almost every woman in town, and many out of town, seems to have sent in her best efforts. And you see most of them were right.

Why not you? There are hundreds in already.

Five puzzles having been printed in last Sunday's issue of The Times, there are still twenty of the preliminary twenty-five, including the above set.

You have a good chance to enter now. Simply answer these five and nine more and you have qualified.

There will be even more enthusiasm and earnest work this Sunday than last, for a greater number of The Times' women readers understand the contest, and all those who for any reason did not enter last week are ready with a will to start right in this moment to solve the five puzzles above. Do not begin by thinking them too difficult. When you have found the correct answer you will find them reasonably easy.

Work till the last mail Wednesday. It may not take you half that time to fill out the answer coupon correctly.

Try as hard as you know how and get every one of your friends to help.

You will be surprised at the result.
